SINCE 2009 RAG HAS HELPED THOUSANDS OF RECORDING ARTISTS GAIN EXPOSURE, GET ENDORSEMENTS, SECURE MAJOR RECORDING AND PUBLISHING DEALS, GET SONG PLACEMENTS IN MAJOR FILMS AND TV SERIES, BOOK MUSIC FESTIVALS, CLUBS, TOURS AND MORE,

A message from RAG founder Byron Booker

Like many of you I'm a lifelong lover and creator of music. Long before I put my music executive hat on, I was an artist writing songs and performing for years in front of large and small crowds around the world. I've gotten a chance to perform on shows with Robin Thicke, Jagged Edge, Queen Latifa, Eric Benet, Bobby Brown, and many others. I've had my songs featured in films with Robert DeNiro, Forest Whittaker, Bruce Willis, Nicolas Cage and more. I've executive produced works with FloRida, Snoop Dogg, Brandy, Chris Brown and more.

I've toured around the world with my own artists, and booked acts like P Diddy, Skylar Grey, and Warren G. I've secured 7 figure publishing deals for writers / producers who wrote songs for icons like Rihanna, Madonna, and Brittany Spears. I can truly say I've seen and done a lot in my career. But I'm most excited about what's next.

When I endeavored to start the Recording Artists Guild in 2009, I had recently lost my deal with Universal Music due to our parent label TVT Records going defunct. I knew then that my next venture would be about finding new and innovative ways to empowering independent artists to thrive in the ever-changing music business. Even though we've facilitated many opportunities for artists showcasing and monetizing their music, we've learned that the best thing we can do is provide them with:

1. Access to decision makers that can further their career
2. Exposure so that they can get more fans and supporters &
3. Recognition of the quality music they create

Of course, we will continue to educate and support artists with tech tools, medical and business resources as part of our benefits. As we move into the next era of music, we want to give the community of indie recording artists all the ammo they need to live their dreams to the fullest. For more information on RAG visit RAG.org.

We hope you will join the more than 25,000 RAG indie artists community and maximize the resources we have available to you today and in the years to come.

Ready to Get Booked?

We have compiled what we believe is the most comprehensive collection of paying gig outlets on the planet. We have made the content of this book easy for you to understand and access. To get the most out of this massive database you will need to be diligent, organized, persistent and prepared when the opportunities present themselves. There is a massive amount of information in this book. We apologize for any formatting issues in advance.

If you persistently reach out to these contacts with well-polished songs, EPK, videos and representation you will get paid bookings. If you are missing any of the above-mentioned RAG can help you with that. Visit RAG Talent for services that will help you be prepared to get in front of the decision makers. You can also join the Guild to get access to more resources. First things first, let's go over the "I'm Ready to Get Booked" check list. Go over this list before you start sending out emails or making phone calls.

BEFORE YOU REACH OUT TO THE VENUE

- Research the venue booker, get their name, email and a work or mobile phone number. Ask around to see if anyone else has worked with them before, find out what types of music/venues they book. Make sure they are going to be interested in your music.
- Find out the capacity of the venue. Can you realistically get the room to 60 – 100% full? Is this gig a special event like an EP or album launch?
- What nights are they most likely going to let you play? Are Fri/ Sat only for big acts so are you more likely to get a Wednesday slot? Is it worth the work?
- Ask some other bands if they'd be interested in being a part of the lineup, make sure everyone is clear on the play order ahead of contacting the venue. Are you sure the other bands will pull their weight?
- Have a list of potential dates to present the venue.
- Is your support material 100% ready to be seen by industry professionals: does your website/ EPK/ bandcamp/ instagram/ ticktok etc include a fresh bio, great demo songs, great promo photos, contact info on clear display, active social media pages, a list of other gigs you've played?
- Is your stage plot and list of ideal technical specifications ready to go? If not, chat to a sound engineer and sort out your stage requirements with them ahead of making any bookings.
- Practice the hell out of your live set and make sure you (all) feel confident that you have 45 minutes' worth of great material that will hold the audience's attention. Consider asking someone you trust to come to one of your rehearsals to offer constructive criticism on your live set.

CONTACTING THE BOOKER

- Email the venue booker with a short line about your band/lineup, with links to your various online profiles and your preferred dates.
- If you haven't heard back from the booker in within a week or two, follow up with another email, call, text or even a DM on their social media if you can find it. Be patient, bookers are very busy. Check if they've had a chance to review your music pitch. Expect to have to follow up more than a few times before you get booked. Just remember to be courteous and professional and don't reach out more than once a week.
- If they decide not to offer you a show, try to find out why. It may just be that they just don't have space for you right now, or maybe they don't think you're ready? Maybe they'd prefer you to have an EP or album launch there instead? Don't be offended, ask if you can get reach out again later. .

YOU GOT THE BOOKING

- Discuss payment methods. Common options include a door deal, a flat fee, a “versus” deal or percentage deal. It’s usually up to the venue unless you can guarantee a full house. Make sure you understand the terms of this payment deal absolutely clearly, and that any ticket prices accurately reflect your band/ events worth and ability to pull a crowd. (ie don’t charge $20 unless you are confident people will pay that price to come watch you perform) ** See details about this here:
- Does the venue provide a PA? What kind of PA is it? Is it enough for your requirements? Is it free for the bands as part of the deal? What production gear (if any?) will you need to bring along?
- Does the venue provide stage lighting?
- Does the venue provide sound/ lighting engineers? Are he/ she free for the bands as part of the deal? Ask for their contact info and get in touch to discuss your requirements.
- Are you going to bring your own sound/ lighting engineer? Make sure she/ he gets in touch with the venue’s production team, or at least send the venue your stage plot and tech specs.
- Does the venue provide backline? What is it? Is it free for the bands as part of the deal?
- If the venue doesn’t supply backline, talk to the other bands on the lineup about sharing gear (drums, amps) and make sure that everyone is cool to share whatever gear is on offer. Make sure they all know what gear they have to bring, and make sure it’s all there for soundcheck.
- Does the venue provide a runsheet? If not, as the person responsible for the booking then make one up yourself.
- Have you forwarded the runsheets on to everyone involved, including the sound/ lighting engineers, all the other bands and any other staff you might have on the night (ie merchandise, door staff, etc)
- Does the venue provide door staff?
- Will you pre- sell tickets?
- Does the venue have a relationship with any online ticketing companies? Do you have to use them to pre- sell your tickets?
- Does the venue supply an entertainment rider? What can you expect to receive? (It’s up to the venue what they supply you, it depends on how confident they are that you will pull plenty of heads to pump up the bar take)
- Will you be allowed to sell merch and does the venue take a percentage of sales?
- Does the venue have a noise curfew (this includes soundcheck times as well as the main event), and do they always open doors at a certain time?
- Does the venue offer soundchecks? Find out the window of availability for soundchecks.
- Are there any restrictions on loading in or out gear? Where can you park your vehicles for loading/ loadout? Does the venue offer any parking?
- Will the venue help you advertise the gig?
- Have you planned out a marketing strategy to get as many people there as possible? Check out

MAKE THE SHOW A HIT

- Put up posters around town. An eye- catching flyer or poster is another great way to grab attention and bring people out to your show .
- Step up promotion on social media. Share and re- share your Facebook event and a digital image of your flyer or poster, and make sure you’ve invited all your local friends and followers.
- Contact local bloggers, radio personalities, and alt weekly writers. If you can get a little media coverage for your gig, you’ll be able to reach new fans. Plus, you can share the coverage you get on social media to keep your current fans engaged and excited. Look for people who specialize in covering local music or music in your genre to help you out.
- Send an email to your local fans. When you have a big show coming up, you can be sure your fans will get your email. The same can’t be said for your Facebook posts.
- Confirm advance information with the venue. Make sure you know what time you need to set up, how long your set is, and the terms for payment have been agreed upon.

The Day Before

- Double- check your gear. Do all your cables work? Do you need new strings? Better to take care of those things now than have an equipment issue on stage.
- Pack your gear. I bring a bottle of water, a couple protein bars, a roll of duct tape, extra ear plugs, sharpies, spare guitar strings, a handful of guitar picks, a bottle of hand sanitizer, and a small notebook with me to each show. Pack your bag the day before to get it out of the way and reduce stress the day of the show.

- Print or write copies of your set list. Don't wing it on stage. Make sure you've planned your set and practiced it before your show.
- Plan your outfit. Figure out what you want to wear and lay it out somewhere. Don't add stress by scrambling to find the right stage look at the very last minute. If you're in a band or ensemble, talk about what you're going to wear with the group so you can present a cohesive image.
- Get a good night's sleep. You'll perform better when you're rested, and you'll have more fun.

The Day Of

- Get rid of the jitters. Get into a good mindset by reading a book, meditating, working out, or watching your favorite show. Figure out what calms you and helps you prepare to play like the rockstar you are.
- Eat a light meal two to three hours before your performance. Have a healthy meal so you'll be on top of your game.

At the Gig

- Be there on time. Being punctual shows the venue that you respect their time, appreciate the opportunity you've been given to perform, and that you're professional. Seriously, if you don't follow any of these other tips, you must at least show up on time.
- Always be polite and professional. Save your complaints about the crowd, venue, or other bands for the privacy of your rehearsal space. When you're at the gig, be positive and kind. You never know who's watching, and you want to make a great impression.
- Say "hi" to the sound person and remember their name. The sound guy or gal is the person who has the biggest impact on how you'll sound in the audience. Be nice to them, and always remember to thank them for the help.
- Make friends with the other bands. Hang out and watch their sets, and they'll want to stay for yours, too. If you're lucky, the other bands will like you and offer you another great gig.
- Don't forget to bring merch items. One of the best ways to make money at a gig is to have something for sale. Additionally, people will remember you better if they have something to take with them. Whether you've got stickers and CDs or vinyl records and t-shirts, don't play a show without putting something on the merch table.
- Always thank the venue, the fans, and the other bands during your set. Be gracious and spread the love. Being likable will help you get further in your local music scene than just talent alone.
- Have fun on stage!!! Enjoy your time in the spotlight. Your audience will feel the vibes and have a great time, too.

The Next Day

- Post thank yous on social media to your fans, the other bands, and the venue. Keep the good times rolling by thanking everyone again. They will notice and appreciate it.
- Re-post the photos that your fans shared at the gig. If someone captured a great live shot of you, show other people what they missed out on by sharing it. You can generate buzz for your next show by sharing how much fun your show was last night.
- Update the upcoming gigs list on your website. Make sure your concert listings stay current by updating your site the next day.
